Ahoy Mates!!

Happy Holidays to all of our on the water friends. It is hard to believe that another year has gone by but what a difference a year makes. Our club has had an AWESOME year of growth.

We started the year trying to figure out how to come out of lockdowns and Zoom fatigue. All 6 of our GMMs were in person in 2022, including our annual Change of Watch in January. It felt soooo good to see, greet, hug and talk to people in person again. That human contact is so important to all of us!!!

Our education department did a phenomenal job in bringing back in person learning and our summer seminar series. Our classes had more students than we have seen in a long time and our membership has benefitted greatly! Our 2023 lineup is looking equally impressive!!

The leadership in the club is energized and has lots of new ideas they want to try to implement in 2023. Come to our GMMs, picnics and BBQs to find out what is going on!! We also have lots of old and new opportunities to get involved. There are various committees and small tasks that we need support. Come out and offer a few hours of time. Many hands make light work. It is a great way to keep in touch with your fellow boaters. Contact me if you are interested!!

Have a great Holiday season with your family and friends. Stay safe. Especially on the water!! See you all in 2023!!!

Treasurer's Report

Lt/C Debbie Lenart, P

SDSPS Treasurer

Hi Folks,

Christmas is a time of giving.

We give gifts or presents to loved ones. Most people call them presents. My son-in-law calls them "prizes". I tend to call them "presents" because that's just the way I was brought up. We give presents. Presents comes in all sizes, shapes, and forms. Most of them are welcomed, some are not.

I found myself the recipient of a very unwelcome present this morning. It was small, grey, furry, and it had a tail. A very LONG tail. And it was missing a part... Need I go on? It was found on the floor of my bedroom just where I would place my feet heading toward the coffee pot for the morning wake up drink. Lucky for me, I had thought to put my glasses on or I would have thought it just another cat toy on the floor. Needless to say, it was unceremoniously taken outside to be disposed. Now I'm thinking that there will be a very disappointed cat wondering why their "present" was found to be distasteful and will bring me a replacement. I hope not! But I'll keep you posted!

Messiah

On the first Sunday in December every year, the Point Loma Choral Union and Orchestra presents the 1742 George Frederic Handel, P musical oratorio MESSIAH. This timeless piece is one of the most performed pieces to this day and its timeless themes of hope and redemption have inspired millions around the world for over 3 centuries.

The Choral Union combines choirs on campus with other singers from the student body, faculty, staff and community to present the choral masterpiece. Point Loma has been presenting this concert, for free, for more than 90 years and our very own club member, Debbie Lenart, P has been performing for many years!!! Kudos to Debbie for sharing her love of music with all of the community!!

I would highly recommend you check out the choral lineup at the University, as they have many free concerts throughout the year. Also, the view of the Pacific Ocean at sunset from their location can be breathtaking!!!

Lessons Learned from the US Coast Guard – 2022

SAFETY LESSONS FROM THE US COAST GUARD – December

We went in October to an "on the water rules" paradise, or hell, depending on how you look at it. At least for me, it was great: Venice, Italy, where we stayed a few days in a B&B at the Grand Canal. The side canals are navigated in some orderly fashion, by the necessity of their limited width and height under bridges, but the 2.5 n-mile Grand Canal is a different story. It is, in my opinion, congested, chaotic, and disorderly, but somehow it all seems to work.

In front of our B&B was a stop for the airport link water taxi that took us from the airport to the B&B. The same dock was used as a stop for the water ferry bus which runs every 12 minutes for the length of the Grand Canal in either direction and has stops alternating from one side of the channel to the other. This system transports more than 95 million passengers per year (2013).

There is a formal speed limit of 11 knots, and larger vessels typically stay under that. Of course, at the same time, there are many gondolas at very low speeds and hundreds of water taxis and some pleasure craft at high speeds, not to mention the very high speed of ambulances and police. Sound signals are mostly the same as for us, but also mostly ignored by all. Instead, vocal communication is loudly used to underline the competitive nature of survival in this watery environment. I found one "formal" rule online: "All boats including water taxis and pleasure craft must now keep to the right and in single file. They must also keep a distance of 50 meters [150 feet] from the vehicle in front and no overtaking is allowed." Here is my observation:

Back home, after a wonderful cruise in the eastern Mediterranean, and recovering from jet-lag and overcrowded airports, I need to get back into my real job: safe boating education. At the September challenge, we looked at signals and my question was: "While underway in fog, you hear a whistle signal of one prolonged blast followed by two short blasts. Which type of vessel is likely producing this signal?"

My thanks go to several readers who all responded with the right answer, and with the right Rule: 35 (c). This is answer A, a vessel restricted in its ability to maneuver. The Rule also lists not under command, a sailing vessel, a vessel engaged in fishing, and a vessel engaged in towing or pushing. We call those the 'encumbered vessels.'

Along the Quay in Venice

For this month's challenge, we will look at one of the rules for sailing vessels, even though we previously listed them as 'encumbered vessels.' So, my question for this month is: Which statement is true concerning a sailing vessel approaching another sailing vessel?

- A A sailing vessel overtaking another is the give-way vessel.
- B When each is on a different tack, the vessel on the starboard tack shall keep out of the way.
- C A sailing vessel seeing another to leeward on an undetermined tack shall hold her course.
- D All of the above.

Questions like this one fall under the chapter "Conduct of Vessels in Sight of One Another" and when you are looking for the Rule that is referenced, you may take an extra minute and read the whole chapter, only 4-6 pages. There is a difference whether you are INLAND or in INTERNATIONAL waters. I hope you find the correct answer in the Navigation Rules & Regulations Handbook, and that you let me know.

I also hope that you make plans to take a course from our Americas Boating Club Oceanside. We are gearing up for a WEATHER class and a SAIL class in the near future. To see if you can join, please contact Jan Follestad at

<https://americasboatingcluboceanside.org/classroom/>
